

Short Biography

Dr Beverley Clack is Reader in Theology, Philosophy and Culture at Oxford Brookes University. Her research interests lie within the philosophy of religion, and her work is particularly concerned with exploring the way in which feminist and psychoanalytic theories can inform the approach and content of this discipline. Her publications include Feminist Philosophy of Religion: Critical Readings, co-edited with Pamela Sue Anderson (London: Routledge, 2004); Sex and Death: A Reappraisal of Human Mortality (Cambridge: Polity, 2002); Misogyny in the Western Philosophical Tradition (London: Macmillan, 1999); and The Philosophy of Religion, co-authored with Brian R. Clack in 1998 (a fully revised second edition of this book is to be published in 2008 by Polity Press). She holds a B.A. in Theology from Westminster College Oxford, and a Ph.D. in the History and Philosophy of Religion from King's College London. She recently completed an M.Sc. in Theoretical Psychoanalytic Studies at University College London, and is currently working on an introduction to Freud for OneWorld Press, and a book on Psychoanalysis and the Philosophy of Religion for Ashgate.